Learning Is Fun!

Wakayama Akebono Night Middle School (Evening Classes)

We spoke with Ms. Masuda, who began attending Wakayama Akebono Night Middle School this April.

Q. What made you decide to enroll?

I knew there were evening junior high schools in other parts of Japan, but not in Wakayama City. When I heard one was opening here, I knew I wanted to join!

Q. How are the classes so far?

They're lively and enjoyable. The teachers match the lessons to our pace, so it's easy to ask questions. I've finally understood things I never grasped before, and I can now speak with confidence in front of others. I'm really glad I enrolled.

A look inside
the classroomThe library has around
2,000 books

Wakayama Akebono Night Middle School offers evening classes for: (1) Those who did not complete compulsory education; (2) Those who graduated junior high but were unable to attend enough classes due to circumstances such as long-term absence; and (3) Foreign residents who have not completed education equivalent to Japan's nine-year compulsory schooling.
